

Six states suffer

Fires out of control

Associated Press

Crews used natural barriers to keep a 14,000-acre wildfire in Wyoming's Teton Wilderness from reaching summer homes Tuesday, while officials in Alaska left fires that have charred more than a half-million acres to die on their own.

Wildfires burned Tuesday in four other Western states, but none of them threatened populated areas and most were small.

Colorado firefighters hoped to control several fires by late in the day, including one that scorched more than 1,000 acres. Officials in California, Utah and Oregon all said fires in their states were contained or under control.

The northern edge of the lightning-sparked fire in Wyoming was closing in on Yellowstone National Park, but was allowed to burn since it was on U.S. Forest Service land and wasn't a threat.

However, 550 firefighters used natural firebreaks like streams and rock formations to keep the southern border of the fire from reaching a colony of summer homes in Buffalo Valley, 12 miles away.

In Alaska, five fires accounted for almost 450,000 acres of the total.

Nearly a third went up in a blaze near Livengood, about 60 miles northwest of Fairbanks, said U.S. Bureau of Land Management spokeswoman Sue Mitchell.

Alaska officials generally let the fires burn unless they threaten lives or property, critical wildlife habitat or commercial timber, said Tom Frey, fire coordinator for the Alaska Fire Service.

Rugged territory in the Wyoming fire, at an elevation of about 8,500 feet and in prime grizzly bear habitat, has complicated firefighting.

Fire Information Officer Doug Huntington said Tuesday they were shuttling crews by helicopter to the fireline in order to keep the crew moving around and prevent walking from point to point because of rugged terrain.

In Yellowstone, to the north of the Teton Wilderness, officials monitored several fires covering 11,000 acres.

While all Yellowstone's roads and front-country campsites were open, campfire restrictions were imposed throughout the park's back-country.

In Northern California, fires that apparently had been set were contained Monday and early Tuesday, but not before destroying a home and two other buildings in Jackson. Utah fires were reported in Rich County and on the Uintah-Ouray Indian Reservation and crews were mopping up an 88-acre fire on Diamond Mountain in eastern Utah.

Bangerter defends his administration in Tuesday meeting with local voters

By APRIL D. LOWRY
Senior Reporter

Gov. Norman Bangerter defended his economic policies of the past four years at an appearance Tuesday morning in Provo where he fielded questions from local residents.

Bangerter defended his economic tactics by stating that he felt comfortable with what he has done throughout his term as governor. "Maybe that's the wrong word to say but I feel good about what we've done," said the governor, who will defend his office against Democrat Ted Wilson this fall.

"There has to be change," said Bangerter. "I recognized that back shortly after taking office. In June of 1986, we asked every department in the state to prepare a budget at 94 percent of the previous year because we recognized that the economy of the state of Utah was changing and that of the nation. And government has to change with it."

The governor said the necessary changes cannot be made overnight. "We didn't get into the trouble we are in overnight and I don't think we have to be vicious about how we make these changes."

The governor said he did not intend to cut their budgets but rather he wanted the departments to reorder their priorities and restate, rethink and realok at what they were doing and eliminate those things which did not make as much sense.

"We have tried to deal with these things in an up front way. Ted said the other day in a debate 'In answer to that question I am going to give you a commercial.' My answer was I'm not going to give you a commercial. I am going to tell you the truth; I'm going to tell you what we've got to do to deal with these issues," said Bangerter.

"The Democrats are suggesting that they are trying to protect the family," said Jess Bushman, voting district chairman for the Republicans.

"Yet at the same time they support abortion and homosexuality — two factors that do as much to destroy the family as anything."

England's bonfires recall the Armada

Associated Press

LONDON — "It's time to bury the hatchet," said the man who organized bonfires across England to re-enact the warning given 400 years ago of the Spanish Armada. Spain's ambassador drove to Cornwall to light the first one Tuesday night.

The destroyed Spanish Armada consisted of 125 ships carrying 19,000 soldiers, 8,000 sailors, 2,000 galley slaves and 180 monks and friars.

They were sent by Philip II, the Roman Catholic king of Spain, to overthrow England's Protestant Queen Elizabeth I.

Ambassador Jose de la Bellacasa traveled to Cornwall to light the first fire in a village at the southwest tip of England where local people say the Armada was sighted on July 19, 1588.

The chain of beacons extended to the Scottish border, 430 miles away.

Historians have argued long over whether the English or the gales defeated the Armada.

Iraqi planes hit Iranian targets

Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iraqi warplanes raided an unfinished nuclear plant and other Iranian industrial targets Tuesday, the day after Iran said it would accept a U.N. cease-fire proposal.

The ranking republican member of the House Armed Services Committee, on a visit to the Persian Gulf, said it would be "very simple" to start pulling the U.S. Navy out when a truce takes effect.

Iran claimed the destruction of three attacking Iraqi jets. Iraq did not acknowledge the air raids but claimed to have destroyed two Iranian aircraft — one in a dogfight over the gulf and the other with anti-aircraft fire near Kirkuk, an oil center on the northern frontier.

War communiques from Tehran said the Iraqi raids were "barbaric" and Iranian warplanes retaliated by raiding a dam at Lake Darbandikhan near Kirkuk, 140 miles northeast of Baghdad.

Each side acknowledged the loss of one aircraft.

Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz, of Iraq, said Iran's decision to accept the year-old Security council resolution was "two-faced" and "aiming at winning time to launch surprise offensives" in the war, which began in September 1980.

Rep. William Dickinson of Alabama said in an interview that a gradual reduction in U.S. forces could begin as soon as a cease-fire became reality and the political and diplomatic process permitted it.

"The extraction of our forces is going to be very simple," he said. "We don't have anything on the ground.

All we have to do is wind that ship up and go."

The United States has had naval forces in the gulf since 1948 and now has 27 warships in the region, with about 17 in the gulf at any time, according to U.S. military sources.

Iran said the Iraqi air raids were proof that Baghdad opposes an end to the 8-year-old war. Tehran's official Islamic Republic News Agency quoted the head of Iran's Atomic Energy Organization, Reza Amrollahi, as saying the Iraqi raid on the nuclear plant inflicted "heavy losses."

After an Iraqi raid on the facility in November, Iranian officials claimed the possibility of a major nuclear disaster like the April 1986 explosion and fire at the Chernobyl plant in the Soviet Union. International nuclear experts said there was no significant hazard.

Controversy over tax issues continues

By DOUG GIBSON
Senior Reporter

The fate of three state tax limitation initiatives to be voted on in November depends on whether initiative backers can convince voters the $346 million in cuts will erase administrative "waste" or if those opposing the proposals can persuade Utahns that the cuts will damage educational resources.

The initiatives were placed on the November ballot after the required signatures were compiled by the Utah Tax Limitation Coalition. One, called the Peoples Tax Reduction Act, would return the state individual income tax, sales tax, motor fuel tax and cigarette tax to their levels previous to the 1987 and 1988 changes by the state legislature.

The second, titled the Peoples Tax and Spending Limitation Amendments, would limit annual state spending to 85 percent of the state's per capita income increase and limit the increase in local governments to 90 percent of the state per capita income. Also, local areas would qualify for a percentage revenue increase that would be determined by population increases in a local area.

The third initiative would provide tax credits to Utah residents whose children attend private schools.

State educators, worried that the cuts will affect public education, have reacted to recent polls published in the Deseret News showing the first two initiatives with heavy popular support and the third trailing by a small margin. Jim Campbell, president of the Utah Education Association, hinted in a recent interview that public teachers may strike if the initiatives pass. The Provo Unified School District said they are setting up a committee to study the initiatives.

Utahn to make decision

A new group called Taxpayers for Utah has been established to oppose the initiatives. Headed by former Govs. Calvin Rampton and Scott Matheson, the group has raised $600,000 in an effort to defeat the proposals.

Proponents of the initiatives have criticized the new group as being composed of "politicians" and special interest forces. The Utah Taxpayers Association, which helped draft the second initiative, in a press statement accused Taxpayers for Utah of representing "those in our state who have their snout in the public trough."

Greg Beesley, leader of the Tax Limitation Coalition of Utah, questioned the large amount of money being spent to defeat the initiatives. "They have spent more money in a month to stop these initiatives that we've spent in a year and a half," he said.

Both Republican Gov. Norman Bangerter and his Democratic challenger Ted Wilson oppose the initiatives while Independent candidate Merrill Cook is supportive of the proposals.

Bangerter's press secretary Francine Giani said if the initiatives pass it will be "devastating" toward education. Giani accused proponents of the initiatives of not taking a stand on what they would cut if the initiatives pass. "We're in the process of putting together an alternative budget if the initiatives pass. We're looking at truth, which is something the tax initiative sponsors have refused to do. It's time for them to step up to the plate and take a stand," she said.

Beesley said it isn't the responsibility of the Tax Limitation Coalition to determine how the state spends revenue. "The Tax Limitation Coalition doesn't address what government waste needs to be eliminated. The petitions addressed cuts in budget specifically," he said.

Wayne Nesmith, a spokesman for Cook, said much of the waste is situated in the administration of government programs. "A lot of the cuts will be of current administrative procedures," he said. "There are no tight controls on spending. This $3.5 million of misappropriated funds at Timpanogos Mental Health Center is just the tip of the iceberg," added Nesmith.

Giani defended current government spending and refuted charges that fiscal policies are lax in Utah.

CORRECTION

Due to an editing error, an article in Tuesday's Universe about a new BYU policy which will require students to make their vehicles to pass an emissions control test prior to receiving a parking permit should have read that the policy is effective immediately and applies to all cars with the model year 1968 or newer.

The Universe regrets the error.

Gov. Norm Bangerter spoke with a Provo audience Tuesday of his pride in what has been accomplished during his administration.

blame the problems you inherited. I guess that's true, but I'm not built that way," said Bangerter. "When I became governor in January of 1985 it was not my job to see how much blame I can push back. When I leave office I'll leave behind a few problems too."

Judy Schiffman, one of the Bangerter's grassroots directors, said of the race, "It is winable." She characterized the governor as a responsible leader who has told the truth and has stood up for what he believes in.

"Norman Bangerter — Utah's best governor and worst politician," are the words Schiffman read from a proposed bumper sticker and said the phrase would probably be a good one.

The governor said people tell him he is not colorful enough, but he said he has tried to make the right decisions and tried to get the right information.

"And I am proud of what we have done in the state and there are some of the things we have done I would have liked not to have done. I wish I wouldn't have been faced with some of the challenges we have been with, it would have been easier."

Romesburg is new UVCC president

By KIMBERLY POWER PYPER
Universe Staff Writer

Kerry D. Romesburg began his tenure of duties as president of Utah Valley Community College on Monday.

Romesburg arrived Monday from Alaska, where he just completed 13 years as executive director of the Alaska Commission on Postsecondary Education.

Romesburg said his first impressions of Utah County were positive. "I am very impressed by the partnership UVCC has established with the community and the state."

Romesburg said he is concerned about tax initiatives and pending proposals for funding cuts on state budget and programs, but stressed he was new to the area and not too familiar with all of Utah's concerns yet.

He said he has studied Utah demographics and found that Utah's school age children are the highest proportion of the population and the state gives 50 percent of its budget to education.

Some budget cuts have been proposed for UVCC, and Romesburg said he is opposed to them. He said he understands people are tired of paying taxes, but he hates to see people lose the benefits of the good programs taxes provide. "When you lose one or two million from a $17 million budget, you have to curtail enrollment."

However, Romesburg added that he was not against fundraising. "UVCC is really a resource to the community for training and support, especially to the corporate aspect of the community."

Romesburg stressed the primary focus of UVCC as being a vocational-technical college, not just a junior college for general education. He said general education is no less important but UVCC was proud of the vocational and technical programs it offers the community.

Areas in which Romesburg felt he would like to see an improvement were some of the college's programs and classes which are losing enrollment. Romesburg says UVCC will not cut the programs, instead the college will rejuvenate and revamp them.

UVCC's new president has met with BYU President Jeffrey Holland and plans to meet with him again. According to Romesburg, there is a concern about enrollment. He said as BYU fills its enrollment capacity, more students will turn to UVCC to continue their education.

"A community college must respond to community needs. It must strike a critical balance in serving vocational-technical training needs of the students at the same time it provides general education classes for those students who want to transfer to a four-year institution. One of these roles cannot suffer at the expense of another."

Romesburg earned his bachelor's, master's and doctorate degrees at Arizona State University. Before his post in Alaska, he was the executive director of the Arizona Commission for Postsecondary Education.

Jackson encourages unity, praises Dukakis

Associated Press

ATLANTA — Jesse Jackson brought his 1988 presidential campaign to an emotional climax Tuesday night, exhorting Democratic convention delegates in the rhetoric of party unity that "the only time we win is when we come together."

He told thousands of boisterous Democrats — waving red banners of "Jesse" and blue placards of "Dukakis" — that, "If lions and lambs can find common ground, surely we can."

In a prime time speech to the Democratic National Convention, Jackson — the certain runner-up to Dukakis in Wednesday night's presidential nomination roll call — offered praise to the victor from Massachusetts.

"Tonight I salute Gov. Michael Dukakis," Jackson said in his prepared remarks. "He has run a well-managed and dignified campaign. No matter how tired or how tried, he always resisted the temptation to stoop to demagoguery."

He summoned Democrats to move together to "a new day and a new direction," but made a special appeal to the poor and dispossessed who gave him their votes by the millions in his extraordinary drive for the presidency.

"I was born in the slum," he said as he did at hundreds of campaign rallies over the past two years. "But the slum was not born in me. And it wasn't born in you. You can make it."

Jackson climbed the podium after Dukakis used his majority delegate strength to win the platform of his design. An earlier parade of prime time speakers ridiculed Vice President George Bush as a "toothache of a man and worse."

Jackson's speech was the main event of the second night of the convention, and he said, "my right and my privilege to stand before you has been won — in my lifetime — by the blood and the sweat of the innocent."

Leak threatens delay in shuttle launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — A pressure drop detected in January might have alerted engineers to the small leak that now threatens a long delay in the next space shuttle flight, but there is no conclusive evidence that workers acted improperly, the launch director said Tuesday.

Director Bob Sieck said a search of paperwork shows that a pressure check was made on the oxidizer tank manifold in an engine compartment before Christmas, and a second reading was taken about two weeks later.

"There was a pressure drop of about 16 pounds per square inch between the two data points," he said in an interview.

A tiny leak of nitrogen tetroxide gas was detected in an engine compartment of space shuttle Discovery on the launch pad Friday.

Engineers have been puzzling over how to fix the leak without removing the shuttle from the pad, a move that could delay the planned early September launch by two months.

The leak is in a fitting on a one-half inch line leading to an oxidizer tank, the same area where the pressure drop was detected in January.

"We wish we had found it earlier," Forrest S. McCartney, director of the Kennedy Space Center, told a news conference. "If we had found it when it was accessible, there would have been no problem. But it's in an inaccessible place, and we don't know what we're going to do about it."

"The odds are 50-50 on a rollback (of Discovery)," McCartney said.

Justice Department investigates Meese

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department has launched a new ethics investigation into the conduct of outgoing Attorney General Edwin Meese III in the wake of an independent counsel's finding that he "probably" violated criminal laws on four occasions.

Meese's assistance to his longtime friend E. Robert Wallach is expected to come under especially close scrutiny in the latest probe, said department sources, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The self-styled citizens group Common Cause asked the Justice Department's Office of Professional Responsibility on July 6 to look into Meese's ethics. OPR Counsel Michael Shaheen replied, in a letter released Tuesday by Common Cause, that "We have initiated an inquiry into your complaint."

Common Cause President Fred Wertheimer had requested specifically that the Justice Department unit examine whether Meese violated a 1965 executive order spelling out standards of conduct for government employees as well as provisions of a federal law, the Code of Ethics for Government Service.

Officials predict record coal production

WASHINGTON — Coal industry officials predicted Tuesday that the nation's coal companies will have record production this year, as some utilities turn to coal-fired generators to replace hydroelectric power in this summer of drought and soaring heat.

In a mid-year production forecast, the National Coal Association said coal production should total 926 million tons in 1988, up 9 million tons from last year's record.

"With low-water conditions in the Pacific Northwest, particularly, utilities that normally use hydroelectric power have had to turn to coal-fired generators," said David MacKenzie, director of strategic planning for AMAX Coal Co. of Indianapolis. "There's also been increased use of air conditioning, and that pushes up the demand for coal." According to John Tellmann of Mapeo Coal Inc. in Tulsa, Okla., "Most of the increase is going to be for Western coal, because they supply the utilities out there that can't use hydro." The coal association projected consumption of 38 million tons of metallurgical coal—that used in steel production—for an increase of 1 million tons from last year, and said industrial consumptions should remain steady at 82 million tons.

South Africa quiet on Mandela's birthday

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — South Africa was quiet on Nelson Mandela's 70th birthday, showing once again the government's ability to defuse potentially explosive events and its refusal to bow to world opinion.

Dozens of governments—including the United States—appealed for Mandela's release. Thousands of people held rallies in world capitals to mark the birthday Monday of the African National Congress leader who has been imprisoned since 1962.

In South Africa even the pro-government, Afrikaans-language newspaper Beeld said it now would be better to free Mandela rather than further enhance his stature as a martyr.

But the government responded in its customarily blunt fashion: no birthday celebrations and no freedom for Mandela until he renounces violence.

Mandela's birthday passed in South Africa without a major public celebration or an outburst of violence. "This day turned into what the government wanted to be made of it," the leader's wife, Winnie Mandela, said Monday.

Girl identifies Headley as her abductor

BRIGHAM CITY — An 8-year-old Deweyville girl on Tuesday identified Thomas C. Headley as the man who abducted her from a Tremonton school, took her to Idaho and abandoned her on March 24, 1987.

The child took the stand for only five minutes during a preliminary hearing in 1st Circuit Court for Headley, 31, of Snowville, who is charged with aggravated sexual abuse of a child, child kidnapping and aggravated kidnapping. Authorities said the child was taken from the Bear River Middle School in Garland, sexually abused and released the following morning in Malta, Idaho, about 65 miles away. A Washington man, Frank James Harvey, previously was convicted in the case, but he was released in January when authorities said they had a new suspect.

Judge Robert W. Daines cleared the courtroom of reporters and the public when the child, who was 6 years old at the time of the kidnapping, took the stand. Observers were ushered to the City Council chambers, where they listened to her testimony on a speaker.

Asked by prosecutor Jon Bunderson if her kidnapper was in the courtroom, the child said "Yes," and then pointed at Headley.

I-15 construction to be completed by October

By ERIC SCHETSELAAR
Universe Staff Writer

Road construction on Interstate Highway 15 at the Point of the Mountain has been delayed at least two weeks and is now scheduled to be completed by the end of October if everything goes as planned, said the project engineer.

Marv Christiansen, project engineer, said the three-mile stretch of the northbound lanes that had $3.9 million worth of repairs at the end of

"The inconvenience we have had has been minimal due to the traffic control we have used on this project. It's by far the best way to approach it. It gets the traffic away from the work area."

—Marv Christiansen
Project engineer

"The inconvenience we have had has been minimal due to the traffic control we have used on this project. It's by far the best way to approach it. It gets the traffic away from the work area," he said.

Northbound traffic has been diverted to the southbound side of the highway.

Christiansen said there has been a problem in finding a sealant that meets the standard of quality for the state.

The amount of sealant needed to complete the job is 2,310 gallons.

If the sealant is bought with a specific standard then it can be immediately put down on the road. If not, samples have to be sent to Washington, D.C., for testing to make sure the substance meets state standards, Christiansen said.

One sealant has already been rejected and caused the delay in the schedule.

When the sealant is obtained, they plan to work a double crew, or twice the number of men in order to complete the road, he said.

It takes a week and a half to two weeks to put down the sealant. The second week in August is the tentative date for the completion of the northbound lanes, said Christiansen.

Each side of the road was originally planned to take three months to complete. When construction on the northbound lane is complete, traffic will be detoured into that lane to make the repairs in the southbound lane, he said.

The roads were unsafe and needed repairs, said Kevin Beckstrom, information specialist for the Utah Department of Transportation. He said the construction is being paid for by state and federal funds.

The project includes removing old asphalt shoulders and replacing them with concrete and replacing all on and off ramps with concrete.

It also includes making repairs on State Road 92, the Alpine exit, and repairing old concrete surfaces, said Christiansen.

Concrete lasts longer and is easier to maintain, Beckstrom said. "There just aren't as many problems with it," he said.

The temporary pre-cast concrete barrier between the two lanes cost $350,000 and 90 to 95 percent of it will be undamaged and reusable, said Beckstrom. It will be used two times on this project and also on other projects throughout the state.

Jay Knez, superintendent of the project, made no official comment for the construction company.

Holland appoints new deans

By DAVID Q. MCKAY
 Universe Staff Writer

President Jeffrey R. Holland announced the appointments of two new deans.
 Dan W. Andersen, associate dean of the College of Education, replaces Ralph B. Smith as dean of the same college. Clayton S. Huber, chairman of the Food Science and Nutrition Department, replaces Bruce N. Smith as dean of the College of Biology and Agriculture.

Andersen named Ruel A. Allred, professor of elementary education, and Russell T. Osguthorpe, professor of educational psychology, as associate deans.

Richard W. Heninger, chairman of the Zoology Department, and William L. Park, professor of agricultural economics, were named as associate deans by Huber.

Andersen joined the BYU faculty in 1980 and was appointed the associate dean in 1984.

Before coming to BYU, Andersen served for six years as the president of BYU-Hawaii. During that time the enrollment at BYU-Hawaii nearly doubled from 900 to about 1,800 students.

Andersen has also been an associate dean over the education faculty at Haile Selassie I University in Ethiopia and professor and assistant dean in the School of Education at the University of Wisconsin.

Huber served as chairman of food science and nutrition at BYU from 1976 until he was appointed dean of the College of Biology and Agriculture.

Before joining the BYU faculty in 1976, Huber was involved in space projects including the Lunar Landing, Skylab and Apollo-Soyuz, the joint American-Russian flight.

Huber has also worked as a consultant for several major food companies and has worked on food processing projects in China, Latin America, Nigeria and the Soviet Union.

Ralph B. Smith retired after 25 years at BYU, serving the last four years as dean of the College of Education. He delayed his retirement for four years after being asked to serve as dean.

Before serving as dean, Ralph served as assistant associate dean, department chairman of education administration and assistant dean of students.

He came to BYU in 1963 after

Estes is sentenced to prison on child sexual abuse charge

Associated Press

FARMINGTON — Newton C. Estes, who once punched U.S. Supreme Court Justice Byron R. White to protest pornography, has been sentenced to prison for his plea of guilty to attempted child sexual abuse.
 Estes, 62, of Kaysville, was sentenced Tuesday to five years to life in prison for attempted aggravated sexual abuse of a child, a first-degree felony, and zero to five years for dealing in materials harmful to a minor, a third-degree felony.

Second District Judge Douglas L. Cornaby also ordered Estes to pay $5,000 in fines and to pay restitution for counseling costs to his 11-year-old victim. The prison terms are to run concurrently.

Estes was charged in February with one count of aggravated sexual abuse of a child and a harmful materi-

Home construction predicted to curtail despite dry weather

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Despite dry weather, housing construction only partially rebounded in June from the sharp slump in May, and economists say rising mortgage rates likely will curtail home building for the rest of the year.

The Commerce Department said Tuesday that builders started construction of new houses and apartments at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.45 million units in June, up 5.1 percent from the previous month.

But the improvement only partly offset a precipitous 12.6 percent decline in May. The June numbers don't really signal a rebound in housing, said Thomas M. Holloway, senior economist of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America.

The hot, dry weather of June, bad for farming but ideal for home building, also contributed to the uptick.

Mortgage interest rates, which had climbed by three-quarters of a percentage point from post-stock crash lows in early March, eased slightly in June.

Pageant viewers express feelings

By KENNETH S. ROGERSON
Lifestyle Editor

Manti is a town in central Utah with a population of approximately 2000, according to the 1980 Utah census. But, for two weeks out of the year, its population more than quintuples each night.

The "Mormon Miracle Pageant," which was first performed 21 years ago on the hill of the Manti Temple, has become a yearly tradition for the town to produce and a tradition for many other people to attend.

It was a pretty impressive endeavor for such a small town, said Cameron Deaver, a junior from Raleigh, N.C. majoring in Italian and comparative literature.

"The fact that the town is so small and also the fact that the pageant is done through donations makes it a little more worthwhile to go and see," said 18-year-old Tawnya Cole from Twin Falls, Idaho.

"I don't think that the pageant is funded by the Church (The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints)," said Deaver. "Even without that extra help, it seemed well organized and they had a wonderful sound system."

Jennifer Boren, a junior from Mesa, Ariz., majoring in humanities, said, "It didn't seem to have an order and, to me, it seemed a little choppy. "I really liked the feeling when they described the life of Joseph Smith though," she said.

Going to the pageant once a year is enough, said Boren. "But I would definitely go once a year."

Some people go just to spend time with friends. "I went once when I was young, but I don't remember it much," said Cole. "I go now because I enjoy being with the people I go with."

"I went basically to be with my friends," said Deaver. "But also because I think that the Manti temple is the most beautiful temple."

"It's awesome," said 12-year-old Brodie Wagstaff from Park Valley, Utah. "It's neat how they can do it all."

The Manti Temple just recently celebrated the 100th anniversary of its dedication.

High school workshop to present play

By CHRIS D. RADER
Universe Staff Writer

Tonight the BYU High School Theater Workshop opens its three-performance run of the production "We are a Family."

"We are a Family," written by Howard McOmber and directed by professor Charles Whitman, will be performed by 47 youths from 12 to 18 years of age. It is a compilation of poems about family relationships, integrated with song and dance.

"The students are here for four weeks and are usually in classes from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. everyday," said Keith Judd, assistant to the director.

"In the classes they learn about scene and set work, make-up, costumes, acting, singing and dancing. It is a very intense theater experience," he said.

Judd also mentioned the youths have been taken to see plays performed at Sundance and other local theaters.

"There is a great rapport between the students because of the amount of time they spend together and the intensity of the workshop," Judd said. "We feel that you will be able to see that in the performances."

McOmber, a junior from Sandy who is majoring in film, serves as the acting coach for the workshop and also interprets the poems for the production.

The BYU High School Theater Workshop is conducted by the Theater Department under the direction of Conferences and Workshops.

The youths have come mostly from nearby Western states but a few have come from states such as Iowa, Maryland and Hawaii.

Tonight will be the first performance for the play. "It is very entertaining," said Judd. "But there are hidden messages in the production and you need to pay a little more attention than for some other plays that you may go to for entertainment."

The other two performances will be Thursday and Friday in the Margetts Arena Theater, HFAC, at 7:30 p.m. A donation of $2.50 is suggested.

A LIST OF THE BEST PLACES IN THE WORLD TO BUY A DIAMOND:

1. ANTWERP
2. JOHANNESBURG
3. TEL AVIV
4. CAPE TOWN
5. SIERRA-WEST

We have the most beautiful rings in the world.

Diamonds purchased on the international market at centers like Antwerp usually make a number of stops en route to Utah. They are passed from buyers to any number of brokers, distributors and dealers. And each person involved makes some profit on the transaction.

When you buy a diamond from another jeweler the price you pay reflects the mark-up built in along the way.

At Sierra-West we buy from the largest main source cutters in the world and that along with a lower mark-up reflects a significantly lower price!

Sierra-West diamonds are different only in the price you pay for them. To prove it, here is our guarantee to you. Get a gemological report from Los Angeles or New York on your purchase. If it varies more than 1-grade per quality we would replace the stone. Plus, Lifetime Guarantee against defects. At Sierra-West, diamonds are our biggest bargain.

You're looking for a diamond but don't know where to start? Here are some guidelines on how to get the best diamond for your money.

1. First, see a reliable jeweler. We can explain the difference in various diamonds and how these differences affect the price, like no other jeweler. You see, we think you should know exactly what you are buying, especially when it's something as important as a diamond. Just ask a friend about the Wilson Diamond impeccable reputation.
2. Buy the best diamond you can afford. Most jewelers cannot even offer you the best diamond man has been able to produce: A Lazare Kaplan Diamond. These diamonds are cut to superior specifications for unmatched brilliance and fire. The difference in beauty really shows. Buy a diamond you can be proud of.
3. Look for a store that stands behind their diamonds. We guarantee our diamonds. We replace any diamond that falls out of your ring for life, free. We guarantee your ring for life. We give lifetime services such as cleaning, checking prongs and refinishing your ring free. We guarantee you can trade your diamond for another at any time with no loss to you. We even guarantee the price on any diamond or ring we sell!
4. Find a jeweler who specializes in diamonds. At Wilson Diamonds you won't talk to a former shoe salesman. You will talk to an extensively trained diamond jeweler, who is professionally certified. You will also find the largest selection of wedding sets to choose from. That's because we specialize in diamond engagement rings.
5. Find a store that won't be pushy. Pushiness by salespeople only means they need to force you to make a hasty decision or they probably won't see you again. At Wilson's we feel comfortable about letting you take your time. With all we have to offer, we don't need to pressure you into the right decision.
6. Lastly, find the impossible combination: A jeweler that will give all the above advantages and still guarantee their prices! Impossible? Not at Wilson Diamonds. Save yourself some time and money. Come see us.
